If you pick up from Santander or other cities in Spain you can hire smaller cheaper campers and drive to Portugal and back again if you have the time.

What size of campervans or motorhomes do you hire in Portugal?

Most of the campervans or motorhomes in Portugal are the larger type starting with the very popular 2-berth with shower and toilet.

The 4-berth is great for a couple who want a bit more space as it has a fixed bed in the rear of the campervan. The other beds are made up when the table is dropped down between the two seats.

There are usually free transfers from the airport to the depot.

Optional extras include booster seats, baby seats, bedding, and camping table with chairs, bicycle, GPS, kitchen kit and towels.

You can save by buying or taking you bedding with you.

The Insurance excess is between €600.00 and €1500.00. You leave this as a security deposit on collection of your motorhome.

What is a vehicle rental excess?

Whenever you rent a vehicle, you will find that insurance is included within the daily rental rate (unless separately specified and subject to any exclusions stated on the rental agreement you sign with the vehicle supplier) to cover you for most major incidents. However, like a policy you would take out on your own personal vehicle, you will find that an excess applies. An excess is the first portion you are required to pay on any claim, when you have an accident or your vehicle suffers any loss or damage. In most cases if the vehicle is damaged while it is rented to you, you would need to pay this excess at the conclusion of the hire.

Avoid Saturday collection and return days as there is an extra charge for this.
